"LLOYD'S AT CHRISTMAS"

For the past eight years in Chicago has been a scene of gleesome gaiety and increasing splendor, but this year Lloyd has made such extensive arrangements as will enable him to eclipse all his former efforts.

THURSDAY NEXT, DEC. 13,

Is the day set apart for our Opening Holiday Carnival. All other attempts will sink into effeminate nothingness when compared to this Panorama of Bewitching Beauty.

Next Wednesday's papers will be full of minute particulars for the next Thursday.

Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday

Will be continued a

Wild Whirlwind of Bargains.

First on the list, beginning Tomorrow, at 9:30 a. m., will be that appalling slaughter of Infants' Silk Embroidered Flannel Shawls.

And Fine Silk Embroidered Flannels, alluded to in yesterday's and last Sunday's Tribune. The stock was viewed yesterday by thousands of Chicago's most intelligent ladies, who commented upon the matchless beauty of design and absurdly low prices in words of unfeigned praise and wonder.

At half past nine to the minute—no sooner, no later—the entire lot of Robe Shawls, worth $4 each, will be offered you

At only $1.87 each.

And entire lot of Fine Embroidered Flannels, of average value of $2.65,

For only $1.17 per yard.

Above lots are incomparably superior to anything that can be found before you tomorrow at any other store in Chicago than Lloyd's.

But to baffle all imitation and fly all possible competition, Lloyd will offer cheaper grades of Silk Embroidered Flannels

At only 49c per yard.

And lots of words to, final cheaper grades of All-Wool Silk Robe, Lighted Flannels at only 89c each. And still lots if occasion requires it, for Lloyd's prices must not be tampered with by imitators.

The Next Three Days at Lloyd's

Will be memorable days in the bargain-giving annals!

No Damaged Goods.

NO TRIUMPH OF STORIES OF

Mythical Fire, Smoke, and Water,

For Lloyd is your Square Dealer,

TRUTHFUL ADVERTISER,

AND

CHICAGO'S CHAMPION BARGAIN-GIVER!

Given perfect Goods at prices infinitely lower than you [illegible] damaged by having gone through a fire.

Lot [illegible] Gentlemen's Gaiters, 49c per pair; worth $1.25.

Lot [illegible] Ladies' Kid Button, choice shades, this week from $1.25 to $1.50.

*Lot [illegible] Ladies' Kid Button, per week $1.75. Lot [illegible] Ladies' Kid Button, 1-3 to 7, per week $2.00. Lot [illegible] Ladies' Kid Button, 1-3 to 7, per week $2.50. Lot [illegible] Ladies' Kid Button, 1-3 to 7, per week $3.00. Lot [illegible] Ladies' Kid Button, 1-3 to 7, per week

STORIES are current that an important conference will soon be held between the Emperor of Germany, Russia and Austria.

GERMANY'S Crown Prince has still further ingratiated himself to the hearts of the Fatherland by liberal donations to the poor of Potsdam and the soldiers' orphans.

THE Dolphin over the Coast seizin, involving the Tremont House property, has been still further acted to by the filing of a bill in equity Charles A. Dupee and John T. Thompson, the trustees, jointly and severally duly sued and all of the charges made against them in the indictment of him already issuing part of the record in this case.

GLADSTONE again reigns in the management of the Illinois Central Railroad, Mr. R. T. Jeffery having withdrawn his resignation of the position of General Superintendent.

JUDGE LOCH ordered that bill in the matter of the railroads running out of this city, the Michigan Central, which had failed to attend to change its time, having decided to adopt the new standard at 9 o'clock this morning.

IT IS said Miss Belmont has a rival at the City Hall. Al Hankin says motive much attention, and, in the eye of strangers, is winning the heart's fondest on an Indiana farm which the question is at present running on a side issue.

AT the convention of Archbishop Fiber in Cincinnati next Tuesday the six bishops of the west (Fiber will be present). The seven have not met together for fifty years, a circumstance of them at Louisville, Ky., but is too feeble to attempt a journey.

JAMES JOHN H. WILSON, who died in this city Friday night, had been a resident of Chicago since 1841, and had filled nearly every office of trust and honor in the community. It was to his office in the Bee hill the Secretary Central Hotel, on Market street, between Washington and Madison, having on the fire. The failure of the occupies to extend to avoid funerals, and he was never afterwards able to return to business.

WALSH, the dynamiter, with four fellow-criminalists, put up a scheme to blow up the German Embassy in London, and then, believing the latter present in his execution, tried to sell his information for what it would bring, but fell a victim to the "anti-dynamite gang" of his accomplices and got jailed while they gaily got crowded. It now transpires that the Wolf was one of the rogues who came over and tried to trick up the gambling hell at Nassau.

A MEMBER of Congressman Sunset Wabel Freeman's letter and what that the good citizen of the State Department should be used to assure Mr. O'Donnell, the slayer of Carey, a capture of sixty days, in order that further sedimentary might be allowed in behalf of the condemned man. The Free-dent promised that a safe passage should be sent to Lowell at London. Mr. Lowell's influence in behalf of Lefebure, who have fallen under the law of English hate, good or bad, has not hitherto won him any great amount of glory in Irish-American circles.

IN his letter published in October volume Michael Davitt refers to those signs of the time in England indicative of a coming revolution in the economic thought of its people, especially indicating the recent fantastic declarations made by Wilson Merrill, the poet, before the fellows and undergraduates of Oxford University. The reformers of the new English school, he says, are following in the footsteps of the more advanced Irish, and he is a rigorous crusade against class monopoly. The principles of the Land League, according to Mr. Davitt, are being actively proclaimed by Englishmen, and he cheerfully commends the Democratic Federation to all patriotic Irishmen.

THE LOSING AND FLAGGING CASE.

There is widespread satisfaction at the conviction of Loring and Flanning on the charge of fraudulently using the mails to "operate" the Congress. Most of the far-seeing audience gazes with most upon a large number of victims duped for their course upon the distribution of tokens and circulars, and the verdict in this case is a voice that the public may rely upon the Government prosecution when attacked and carried out to that end. The punishment for the use of the mails for unlawful purposes is by no means nominal: the aggregate penalties to the men just about may be swollen under the statute to a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment for six years, and the lowest punishment is one year's imprisonment and a fine of $1,000. The strict enforcement of these penalties against the vessels already convicted will exercise a powerful restraint upon confidence operations and swindlers of all classes, and if further prosecutions result in running into the ranks who are accepted of having been behind Loring and Flanning the issues will be still more telling and the warning still more effective.

There is another view of these prosecutions which is equally as instructive in a different direction. If there two men—Loring and Flanning—had been tried in one of the State courts for fleecing people in the country they would probably have been able to escape punishment. The prosecution would have been handicapped on all sides. The technicalities of science, laid upon the letters of the State criminal jurisprudence, hoisted by criminal lawyers, would have been interposed at every point. The jury would have been made up with special regard to ignorance and incapacity, and competent to get of enough men. The Judge would have been overruled not merely by the dexterity instructions on his instructions and his interpretation of the law, but also by the knowledge that a certain influential element in local politics was working desperately for the acquittal of the prisoners, and the consciousness that this element might have to be conciliated at the polls when he should come forward as a candidate for reflection, and the District-Attorney might have been subject to similar influences. If at time conditions had failed to secure anything the criminals would probably have escaped through some fault. The course of the trial in the United States Court has been the very reverse in every particular. The peculiar effects were open-ers to eye-dissolving disinterests. The trial was an example. The jury was drawn by a United States Commissioner who knew he was liable to impeachment if he violated his duty, and it was made up of citizens drawn with a view to their intelligence and integrity. The Judge let that he was the representative of the Government and the public interests, and was not dependent upon any class, faction, or "element" for his responsible in office. His charge was clear, direct, and forcible. When the question of bail came up he was free to say of one of the leaders often offered (notwithstanding the letter to a "political friend" of great influence) that it was hard to find the slightest property when the bond had to be forfeited. The District-Attorney was equally diligent, prompt, and fearless. There was a spiritual indignation, a sense of responsibility to society, and a keen sense for justice all through the trial of Flanning and Loring which would have been utterly wanting in a local court.

Its later segment in favor of criminal law reform has been silenced from the trial and conviction of these swindlers. If the most methods practiced in the State courts the crimes against its and property would be reduced by one-half within a very short time. The interest of the United States Government in the conviction of these men was slight as compared with the interest of the State in protecting its citizens against robbery and fraud, but the Government carried with it the interests of hitherto unprotected classes, and which figured before the country as the champion of the public interests. Whatever criminal law reform shall begin to take root in the Legislature under the pressure of public opinion it will not stop until it shall take the Judges of the Criminal Courts out of the elective system, and thus make them thoroughly independent of the unofficial influences which the criminal classes bring to bear upon them under existing conditions.

QUEENSLAND AND THE FISHERIES.

The announcement that Queen Victoria is about to elevate Tennyson to the Peerage will not correspondingly elevate him in the estimation of his admirers. Still less will they esteem it a mark of distinction when it is known that he has agreed for title by including a sonnet to that very tiresome individual, the late Queen, for whose memory he bravely manifests such a remarkable attachment.

It is probable that Brown was a very good servant. It is to be hoped at least that he was better than the average. He is said to have performed his duties faithfully, though his bearing was so stiff that the rest of the family could not subject him, and the other servants hated him. He attended his master's errands and out of doors, and had to accompany him to church and theatre; but he would positively have received a fatal blow remonstrance from his employer. He took one week's holiday with his service. But it is equally true that he was well paid. His stipend was no handsome that he died rich. He had a comfortable funeral. He has had two or three monuments erected to him. A prominent sculptor has been commissioned to chisel his face—all of which is a great deal more than servants usually get. There are many of them, that would take half those gratuities and look forward to affluence. The vast of them are content with a day off, a beer in the parlor, and a drawer of the glass. Having had an exceptional and exemplary reward the Queen now proposes to hand Brown down to posterity convicted in Tennyson's fearful verse and to keep his memory green by engaging it in poetical keys.

This may be one of the penalties of being a good servant. It may be necessary when the Queen recommends that the honest fellow dies, and that it's a good opportunity to do duty, such to exhibit his sweet and complete life to admiring eyes. Any to celebrate the virtues of a hero and the next the achievements of the soldier. But at least the poet, if he had a ranking sense of the Peace of Kings, could send in his regrets and his composition when decent to degrade his muse to the condition of a kitchen drab, and drag her down from her shining Olympian lights to sing the virtues of an everyday servant. Poor Lamont had not Tennyson to Brown is a long step.

The attempt of Tennyson would prove that he denies the Peerage as any condition. Genius needs no title to distinction. All the title in Burke's Peerage could not add a whit to the fame of Tennyson's name. All the pomp and influence of Queen Victoria cannot add to or subtract from his fame. She cannot do anything for him to be ashamed of, but when she orders him to sing the praises of the girls she loves poetry, and when he sings the order in exercise to scorn. The man who reads the birth of the King cannot write a ribbon poem without keeping himself and ruling his hose.

MR. BRADLEY'S DEAL LOUISIANIAN.

Mr. John Bradley is one of those eccentric individuals who are never quite satisfied with letting Nature have her own way. They are always seeking to improve upon her methods by the suggestion of beautiful theories which can never be reduced to practice. He is a busy contriver. He has much sympathy with the poor, of an ideal kind, and he would relieve their condition by having one of Tenny's landscapes in every home, turning the palaces of Israel and Ind-ian out of sight. He would do away with every factory chimney and shrieking locomotive, because they interfere with the natural beauty of lakes, trees, soft banks, and other his substantials likely to reduce the poor, and his substantials poor to get along without work. He would counteract all our prohibitions upon the Yankee style and abolitions of the objections the people might raise who don't want the Yankee style and who don't like it. He would make every palace of a Tenny and Claude without any fear of giving the market with inferior imitations. It may be remarked that he is not a rich man—poetical riches do come from art and social reform and rise to benefit human nature.

In a recent article he expresses his views upon arts and their methods of teaching. He does not attempt to solve the problem what to do with girls, which, but now is agitating so many people, but confines himself to the definition of the chief manner in which girls should conduct their recreation, and as this is the principal business of the girl the remaining object in the aggregate will undoubtedly turn to be settled with the solving answer. His views of the girl in the abstract are very correct, and will be generally accepted by all discerning people, except the brother of the girl. As the brother can never see any one in the girl to suit him and that is of any use to have views about her at all. Mr. Bradley's general view of the girl, however, is not strikingly original. He simply says that here is nothing in the world more beautiful than a beautiful girl—a proposition which the boys farmers and educated and never disputed from Adam's time to our own. It is only remarkable that with the fountain of beauty he did not stop the other side of the proposition—that there is nothing on earth so ugly as a homely girl. This would have afforded him an opportunity to bring in his account of art and to have given us an elegant chapter setting forth the necessity and absolute duty of dispensing all beauty girls by some happiness or school system or legislation to the ranks of ugliness beauty. In the same strong manner of reasoning he might have turned around the proposition that "the misfortune of a nation may be fitly summed up in observing how far it has made its girls miserable," and given us another elegant chapter showing how far the girl has made the nation miserable and not a few the cause of misfortune, and how far the Fenian poet was right when he declared by the literature of his land that a woman was at the bottom of everything.

It is to be feared of "mad personality" that Mr. Bradley's method will attract most general attention, though, as will be seen by the report, it is not novel in this country, and has been extensively followed here for years. In brief, Mr. Bradley advises that every girl should have an editor, all privileged to look at, as the girl of the period would say, "on the other." The most have been the editors of cows, and the managing link, as he explains it, must be a row of singers setting off each one from any further search or freedom of choice until he may see better worth winning, and ignoring his faithful every one who does without will not suffer such ups as the chosen to get into it. A thing understood that no one else has the power to withdraw or separate as to complete the engagement. The girl is this country will at once recognize the fault in features of this magnificence scheme, and will smile at the advent of the girl to England, who evidently is not yielding to the merits of his method and its superior advantages when submitted with reference to one-hold comforts, evening entertainments, park drives, the opera, and holiday invitations. It may not be true the girl in this country can always luxuriate at a clam bounce every now of the other sort are not very plentiful, but a girl who hasn't spent four one at a time in a poor, lonely creature, and aware of her opportunities of all the social profit that may accrue from playing of half a dozen youths against each other.

Mr. Bradley, however, does not have much faith in any plan of proceeding, for he values essentially says he can show that "the love is tremendous with sideways, with joint-stock locks, with locked interest, with parliamentary interest, with grocer-chestnuts, with lazy coals, with monthly engagement, spring fortunes, and Christmas cards." Even again Mr. Bradley is at fault. We fancy there is not so much difference in the species of the game girl that the English variety widely differs from the American. The girl of this country does not care much for proceeding as an incentive to love, but the young man who combines all the other advantages which he mentions need never despair of securing the tender passion of even the community in which he resides. Rank and colossal stocks and landed interests, with the other little figurative for ornament, though in this country are not so much used to it as some countries, spring fortunes, and Christmas cards to spend pleasantly, have players (some-times), opera-boxes, carriages, jackasses, and T-carts, are questions to a deep and lasting passion. The old idea of love to a cottage, of crowned with roses, might do for St. Frederic Phillips and Caroline, but not for the tender passion of the girl of to-day. It wouldn't cause a quick of fever in the right label. Mr. Bradley is evidently thinking of the girls who have succumbed to the wealth of Tennyson and the size of Derbyshire. He does not have the actual girl, as he should and pretends to instruct her in the arts of captivity. But then he knows the youth of the other sex, who are quite capable of following the laws of natural selection without tuition. "Every low young people, brought up on modern principles," says Mr. Bradley, "have ever felt love, or know what it means." With what kind of young people has Mr. Bradley associated? Certainly not with the American, who requires some of the direction of which he complains.

THE CONFEDERACY IN THE CANOE.

The well-known eminent of Mr. Watterson are upon his business instincts, that does not very manfully and not to speak out their real sentiments without regard to time and place as the chief they may have, is illustrated in the case of Mr. John C. Breckinridge, of the St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette, who declares that "the Southern Confederacy is in the middle again and is pushing things." Mr. Breckinridge is a Democrat, as might be suspected from his significant utterances, and a Confederate besides. The St. Louis Republican, trying to smooth out his statement, affirms that he is a (saving) man, and consequently does not represent his party, which, by the way, is not complimentary to the old chief-tains of the party. It is not their business, that the substantials Union intended to have his statement regarded from a Democratic point of view, but from the Confederate Southern point of view, and that he is one of the two prominent, confirmed class, such as Mr. Watterson (meeting who not straight speaking out at the wrong time and have no regard for the proprieties.

It will be difficult for the State's friends and apologists to affirm that the statement is entirely irresponsible, for it begins to look as if the Southern Confederacy were really "in the middle and pushing things." It pushed things with a rush in the Democratic State convention, as Gov. James B. Eads, a Union soldier from Connecticut, found out, too, that was the only soldier who fought on the side of the line that had the hardihood to venture into the canoe in reality of an ally. It was a tolerable pass for him, and he was found himself in a minority of double, though he is a good Democrat. He wanted to Confederate, and as did any Confederate soldier, ran from Union and ran from Georgia. The idea of rebs not run (?), of which the rebels from Pennsylvania, the rebel from Georgia and the rebel from Connecticut, who fought on the Potomac" (Times edit, twenty). It found that the Confederacy was "in the middle and pushing things"—among Iowa Union editors.

The Confederacy is also pushing at political institutions by a bill providing for the arrest of all fugitives implored in the four-teenth amendment—a bill drawn up in the interests of Jefferson Davis, who is the only person in this country that will be specially affected by it. Mr. Davis has never yet pushed himself in on terms. He has always a timorous and suppressed modesty in his ac-tion the other hand, he has not made a public statement since he was released in prison to which he has not justified his course during the rebellion, proved his determination to repeat it whenever the opportunity offers, and expressed his belief and contempt for the United States. The Confederacy is now pushing to have him restored to his political rights, accepted by any qualification.

The Confederacy is pushing in other directions, and Texas is in the middle to re-cover the value of the slave stock once liberated by the Emancipation Proclamation, upon the ground that Texas slavery was different from other slavery, being main-tained by special conditions and provisions, and that human chattels in that State to some sort of legal hereditaments even held under special leases from Congress, and hence that the enemy must pay for them, though emancipation was a war measure and the State of Texas was in open revolt and waging war against the Government at the time and had refused to recognize any of its laws, conditions, or guarantees. This is cer-tainly pretty hard, but as Texas slavery was not different in any respect from Georgia or Louisiana slavery, or slavery in any other Southern State, we are somewhat surprised that Texas should be left to go all the pushing. Why doesn't the Solid South make a call upon the National Treasury and demand compensation for the loss of its system of human bondage, to maintain which it put out so much to secure and life? There is a tempting surplus. Why leave Texas to do the work alone?

In reality Texas seems to be in the middle and is pushing things harder than the rest of the South, though before Congress adjourns one will be likely to have plenty of company.

Another one of Mr. Watterson's confirmed theories calls the Fairbank line, placed in line that, and before consulting to any rights the subject of quotations, and he admits, he will be observed, with much bitterness. More than this, one who reads between the lines will observe the implied opinion that Southern soldiers ought to be pensioned, as the crisis is not original with the Confederate Gen-eral.

Some of them, no doubt, deserve pensions. They did good service for the Union, and gained a standing hostility against their own countrymen of honor by making their submission and acquiescence. It is to be observed that the claims of the very companies and corps which is a reason to expect that the conference and support of the United States must obtain and the entire National community.

THE Irishest little Gleaning Party seems succeeded in their one track idea Police Court case a place for the encouragement of simi-lars. The method in the case of the young thing pursued as old in the most extreme of the Fifteenth Century. Herbert has been one of the prosecutors, and has been charged with the theories with a number of petty thefts. The officers with which he was arrested testified from the newspaper a corporation entanglement, Patrick Prendergast. He deceived Prendergast there and was about to relieve him of the watch when a policeman interfered. The case was forty years before Penn, who stood trial and fell, owing to the "difference" which took particulars of the deed brought to bear on him. Then did Herbert the first one suspected. Mr. Herbert was prompted to walk back a few steps, live in walking and ask, and con-ceal some stone object. Herbert did, of course be useful to Guardian, he did to prosecute the law, "put in good work" at the instance, "run the gang," and do other such services for him. Guardian did be useful to Gods. He has been useful to him. He used for the confirmation in the Council. He entertained Judges to consider from the Justice and canvassed their decision in order for the confirmation in the State Senate. Herbert and his friends understand their confidence and count payment for. A client has proven confi-dence, and he is one of the most profitable which that virtue quotes ever produced. It is impossible in Chicago to have such a system pending over the account of its clients. The Justice Improved the Impression Judges of the Criminal Court who, knowing the character, are commended the assistance by the Governor, the appointment by the Grocery Services in the South Side Police Court is not a par with the other acts of that corrupted Grocery.

MR. CLEVELAND has not come to favor the Gov's candidacy for the Presidency. The pres-ent Democratic Congress will be a President-maintaining one. If Mr. Randall only gets the Chairmanship of the appropriations committee, Gov. and his candidate would stand in the other parts of the Presidential nomination. There would be plenty of new material to work on. The Capitol reports to Governor Hubbell, it is found that when the committees are ap-pointed Mr. Randall will not be in a position for Mr. Cleveland when to take the photo-graph.

IT has suddenly been discovered that the most English sport in New York—Mr. Osmond Tearle, Charles Coghlan, Lionel Rose, Wilson Rose and Beerbohm—are all brothers. It is an awful blow to the Anglomaniacs. There are good actors here, moreover the power to draw New York an actual house of English swells, and the unconvertible fact that they are Irish makes the hatred not of Shakespeare. The descendants of Irish Kings come to the rescue in the city of the largest Irish population than the descendants of Scotch the detachment. The is hard on the Kings.

LATROBE Fish congratulates the Canadian Methodist ministers upon their good sense in having dropped the word "obey" out of the marriage service. The ministers decided that it was more than it was worth, and the wife had to promise obedience. Everybody knows that in Canada as in other countries the husband rules the home, the people, and virtue of the husband.

THE free white compatriots of what are called the "colored race" have made their advantage in the following proposition:

> [illegible] and the free white compatriots of the colored race [illegible] to the Democratic organization.

The resolutions [illegible] the Democratic party [illegible] to the Democratic Congress [illegible] to the Democratic organization.

THE Southern section of the organized op-position seems to be more successful in getting up the official records of the House of Repre-sentatives than the disorganized Northern sec-tion. The Secretary will not stand this very long.

THE Salem Register have been reading the proceedings of the Chicago Common Coun-cil, and are convinced of the space of Frank Sprague. Frank has not yet discharged his Wires, by the way.

THE Grand Old Chicago corporators have seized their powers they should not be slack to get rid of the several officers who provided the votes by which over 100 days can have from a week's wages.

A LAUGHING WORLD.

"Good-by, Mr. Bixby!"

The last farewell song of Governor W. Curtis Bixby, of Vermont, was sung at the Union Depot in Montpelier, on the occasion of his departure for Washington, to attend the inauguration of Chester Alan Arthur, as Governor of the State. The Governor's party was accompanied to the depot by the Governor's staff, the Governor's Foot Guard, the Governor's Horse Guard, and the Governor's Band, and as the train moved out the band struck up the familiar air, "Good-by, Mr. Bixby," which was sung by the entire assemblage. The Governor was visibly affected by the compliment, and as the train moved out of sight he was seen to wipe away a tear from his eye.

Mr. Bixby is a strong Republican, but there is not an intelligent Colonel who reads it but must acknowledge it to be true. Colonels, and Lieutenant Colonels in particular, seem to cling to the simple majesty of their positions as American citizens, and do not always appreciate the benefits which they may confer [illegible] by [illegible] under the influence of which Democrats and Republicans have, during recent years, been [illegible] to vote for Democratic candidates for Governor, Congressmen, and Presidential Electors. The Democratic party has been successful in securing the [illegible] of the Colonels, and the result has been [illegible] to the Democratic party. Colonels are [illegible] to the Democratic party. Colonels are [illegible] to the Democratic party. Colonels are [illegible] to the Democratic party.

A PRESCRIPTION FOR DYSPEPSIA.

Certain harmless, natural, and most agreeable of all, no drugs necessary. By complying with the following suggestions all the symptoms of dyspepsia, such as distress of stomach, nervousness, tasting, sluggishness, sick headache, heartburn, etc., etc., will disappear, the sufferer will again be cheerful, able to fulfill his duties and to enjoy life. Thousands have been profited already, and many thousands more can be made happy also. Now for the prescription:

Breakfast—A dish of tea or of iced or cracked wheat, a cup of coffee or tea (if cleared), and a glass of Ararat's Kumyss.

Dinner—A moderate piece of lean beef or mutton, a mealy potato or two, a little bread, and a glass of Ararat's Kumyss.

Supper—No solid food whatever, simply one or two glasses of Ararat's Kumyss. A glass of Kumyss may also be taken on retiring. Most people sleep better on it.

Though the regions of diet may seem exact to such as are in the habit of satisfying their appetites (not distinguishing between appetite and hunger), yet scientific investigation and experience have proved that it is sufficient for all but hard laborers, with whom diet for dyspeptic gives healthy, ruddy, hearty, where on a color diet he stays poor, weak, and sickly. One week's trial will tell the story and prove the logic of above suggestions. If you do not know what Ararat's Kumyss is you can have a treatise thereon mailed to you, gratis, by addressing

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR
SEA'S, 114 & 116 Wabash-av.

SEA'S THIS WEEK THURSDAY.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Seven years ago Sea's original Methods of advertising were peculiar to himself, and Mr. Sea claims that now, as then, their ingenuity and originality merit the attention given them by our very best people. We had begun preparations for many refined and expensive attractions for the opening to occur in our Main Store on Thursday, but when our advertisements are copied, oftentimes corrupted, and then intermixed with coarsest slang and sub-vulgar headlines, whose every feature of our "Opening Days" is spoilt and burlesqued by vulgar and doubt about obtrusive imitators,

MR. SEA RETIRES,

And to avoid the possibility of your being classed with the "Cheap Johns" we announce that nothing approaching sensationalism or flamboyant will somewhere be found in either our advertisements or in our stores. In their place will, however, be found other characteristics that our imitators, we hope, will not be able to copy or burlesque, and trust that

NEXT THURSDAY'S RECEPTION,

The details of which are here given, will prove the most attractive, as it will surely be the most costly, ever announced by us.

THE SATIN-FRINGED CHRISTMAS CARDS

Will be given all ladies as they enter the Main Store Entrance on Thursday by MR. SEA IN PERSON, who returns from his Holiday Festival in Minneapolis for the express purpose of meeting, PERSONALLY, his Chicago friends, and to have the pleasure of meeting to each his Christmas Greeting.
Mr. Sea will be found PERSONALLY giving all ladies his Satin-Fringed Christmas Greeting

FROM 10 A. M. 'TIL 10 P. M.

They are almost double the size of the card we have used, each girls being different, $500 in cash was paid for the designs, they having taken the third prize in the recent New York Christmas Card Competition. Only one will be given free, and every

This One Feature of the Reception an Expense of $1,500.00 is Involved.

ONE ONLY FREE. DUPLICATES 20 CTS.

Passing Mr. Sea, a series of tent-shaped Christmas Screens are seen extending the entire length of the Store

Where an Orchestra of Twenty Musicians
Will Be Found Suspended from the Ceiling on Fanciful Staging.

There Are Forty Holiday Booths on Main Floor.

LOWER FLOOR. FAN PARLOR. ART ROOM.

The Basement will be so transformed that it is not entitled to the same PRETTIEST MERCANTILE ROOM IN CHICAGO our endeavors will miscarry. PARLOR NO. 1 will be twenty feet in length by twelve in width, and is intended to be

THE FEATURE PAR EXCELLENCE OF OPENING.

It is created by $5,000 worth of Silver, Gold, and Plush Embroidered Draperies, imported direct from Sea in by Sea & Co., Chicago, expressly for this exhibit. Commingled with the above will be found $5,000 worth of the finest Evening and Bridal Fans ever manufactured, Paint and Paint Duchesse Lace, Tropical Birds, Solid Pearl and Shell, Garnish, and every other known variety, each one our own direct importation.

It is expected that all the above, with the aid of Electric, Calcium, and Gas Lights, Convex and Concave Mirrors, Rainbow-Hued Glasses, and other Novel Accessories WILL PRODUCE THE MOST DAZZLING EFFECT.

PARLOR NO. 2 is the Art Room, which will contain the richest wares ever shown in our premises, intended to forever settle the fact that no fine goods are found in Chicago that are displayed at SEA'S.

SECOND FLOOR—THE ONTRICE PYRAMID—DOLL HOUSE MADE OF BOOKS.

If you are curious to know what effect 1,000 Ostrich Plumes of contrasting shades would have formed in the shape of a pyramid seventy feet high, visit Sea's Thursday. It reaches to the ceiling, and represents over $2,500 in money. We are having made as an offset to our much-talked-of Live Dolls on Wabash-av. a Doll House made entirely of paper books, yet costing much money and trouble. EVERY LITTLE GIRL BRINGING A DOLL TO THE DOLL-HOUSE or buying a Doll on reaching the Doll Parlor RECEIVES A PRETTY BONNET OR HAT FOR DOLLY.

Third Floor—Boys' Work Shop—Little Mechanics at Work—Mechanical Toys. Orchestra No. 2.

A Fine Carpenter and Toy Repair Shop will be erected on this floor, and any little boy of good family that is ingenious and handy with tools, or can use a fretsaw, or can paint neatly is asked to call on our Superintendent tomorrow and will be paid to PLAY in the Toy Work Shop Thursday. PAINT BOXES GIVEN ALL CHILDREN who visit these parents visit the Work Shop. MECHANICAL TOYS KEEP TIME WITH THE ORCHESTRA ON THE THIRD FLOOR.

FOURTH FLOOR—A COMPLETE DWELLING-HOUSE.

A practical and tasteful and tasteful dwelling, brass cabinets and gable complete. A parlor with fire-place, from which hang stockings and which burns Coke in it by the aid of Hiring with invisible partial apparatus and explained and furnished. A well appointed dining-room adjoining is a bed, also a baby in a cradle, the whole furnished complete in every detail. An exhibit of Venetian shades to show into what quaint and fantastic shapes curtains can be hung occupies a small part of this floor, reminder of

THE FOURTH FLOOR FILLED WITH TOYS.

We had intended having a Xmas tree (mechanical), but Mr. Bloomingdale's impromptu tree is absolutely perfect, we could not hope to improve upon it, and are free to confess that at the Fair of the Methodist Church can be found the handsomest tree ever seen in Chicago. As the way, if you can afford, and are willing to pay one-dozen prices why not patronize a worthy charity? The high prices we charge surely can have no claim on your charity, for how can they charge you FIVE TIMES ONLY THEIR

FIFTH FLOOR—SWISS ARBOR SCENE.

On the borders of many an Alpine lake quaint picturesque hamlets, the hotels of which are deemed incomplete without an open-air garden, where, seated in vine-covered arbors, the Swiss peasant entertains in their many unique fashion, joined with alpine excursionists, bring you delicious Swiss beers, Swiss rolls, and Swiss coffee. On our fifth floor Thursday will be found just such an arbor, just such beers, just such coffee, and served by a waitress clad in just such a costume fought in Thun, Switzerland, by Sir Sea, and having solid silver chains and ornaments.

LADIES ARE INVITED TO THE SWISS REPAST FREE.

The Great Fire Sale!

I. e., the Sale of Damaged Goods from the FARWELL FIRE on the first of December, will be continued at the

BEE HIVE

174 & 176 STATE-ST. (Opposite Palmer House Entrance)

UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE

For the Bee-Hive to sell to ALL who will call upon us within the next two weeks. Our space is limited. During the week just passed we had to turn away hundreds of would-be patrons in our Cloak Department for want of space and want of help.

We advise the unfortunate ones who cannot receive attention at our Cloak Department to go elsewhere, but compel the merchants to come down with their prices.

Tell the merchants how we mark our Cloaks.

Tell the merchants how crowded our Cloak Parlors are.

Tell the merchants that their Cloaks are worth only half the price they ask for them.

Tell the merchants that you can get the article for less money at the Bee-Hive.

They will believe you, because you are telling the truth, and will make the concession. Sooner or later they have got to do it.

Your eyesight's Reliable

One of the old mistakes of the profession was to think that there were no other ways of curing disease except those which had been handed down from former times.

It is not to be denied that old Doctors have done great things for the world. But when it comes right down to the real curing of disease, it must be admitted that Brown's Iron Bitters has done more enough to earn the encouragement of the whole present generation including the medical profession. There are no mysteries or secrets about the compounding of Brown's Iron Bitters. This preparation of iron is the only preparation which will not injure teeth or stomach, and it is beyond comparison better than the other preparations, which are mischievous and injurious.

You need not fear a mistake in using Brown's Iron Bitters. They do good both to the system and the pocket, and now fill up the depleted. Children take it, and only 50 cents, but with great advantage.

Musical Matters in Chicago—News and Notes from All Parts.

THE DRAMA.

Review of the Week.

The editorial views of playgoers are chief of the contemporaneous productions of such actors as Harrison Campbell, Augustin Daly, Lawrence Barrett, Edwin Booth and Mary Anderson. "The Parisians," "The Banker's Daughter," "Pique," "Divorce" and "Hazel Kirke" are devoid of literary merit but hardly less to popular opinion while the novels of such writers as W. D. Howells, Henry James and George Eliot are fairly growing in favor. What conclusion is the press warranted in drawing from the popular verdict on such works of fiction as "A Woman's Reason," "Roderick Hudson," "The Bostonians," Scarlet Letter" and "The Mill on the Floss"? Evidently enough the stage has to contend, not with Shakespeare, Sir Walter Scott, and the Brontë sisters, but with Mrs. Southworth, Miss Braddon, Mrs. Henry Wood, Mrs. Alexander and the whole host of sensational writers of fiction. Perhaps it was only just that literary culture should have some protection in the theatre, and that the public should be compelled to go to the library for the trash which it has hitherto been allowed to get at the theatre. Perhaps, too, the success of the "Banker's Daughter" and "Hazel Kirke" is due to the fact that they are the first plays which have ever been written with the express purpose of pleasing the people. Other plays have been written to please the critics, and have succeeded in pleasing them, but the people have stayed away. Other plays have been written to please the people, and have succeeded in pleasing them, but the critics have stayed away. Other plays have been written to please both critics and people, and have succeeded in pleasing neither. Perhaps "Hazel Kirke" and the "Banker's Daughter" have succeeded in pleasing both critics and people. If this is the case, it is a very good thing for the stage, but a very bad thing for literature. It is a very good thing for the stage that the people should be pleased, but it is a very bad thing for literature that the critics should be pleased. It is a very good thing for the stage that the people should be pleased with "Hazel Kirke" and the "Banker's Daughter," but it is a very bad thing for literature that the critics should be pleased with "Daniel Deronda" and "Middlemarch." Perhaps the best thing that could happen to the stage would be that the critics should be pleased with "Hazel Kirke" and the "Banker's Daughter," and that the people should be pleased with "Daniel Deronda" and "Middlemarch." Then the stage would be in a position to command the services of the best writers, and literature would be in a position to command the support of the people.

RELIGIOUS.

An Interesting Discourse by the Rev. R. Baker Newton on the Origin of the Old Testament.

Archdeacon Farrar Speaks in Westminster Abbey of the Baronage of Drink in England.

Some Notable Remarks by Bishop Ireland, of Minnesota, on "The Duties of American Citizenship."

Did Moses Write the Books of the Pentateuch?

New York, Dec. 5.—In his second discourse on the origin of the Old Testament in the Church of the Messiah, on Forty-eighth street, the Rev. R. Baker Newton took a general view of the first books of the Pentateuch and briefly, yet pointedly, commented upon and refuted many of the negative claims. Many of the latest interpretations of the Higher Criticism were brought forward and followed the preacher to his Scripture authority.

After describing the books of the Pentateuch the speaker asked, "But who wrote them? The question of their authorship is unimportant. English readers in their hours of worship have been content to take them as they are, and the highest criticism of the Christian Church received the books from the Jewish Church, but from all evidence of record the Jews took the books from the hands of Moses. And coincident to the work of Moses in books written with the pen of comment, is the Pentateuch, which the writer of Moses is the author of the Pentateuch, and the writer of Moses authorship was born of faith, and probably was given by God's spiritual spirit into consciousness of Christ, and identified with the appearance of Christ, and also in the schools of the Savior. But, even as the Christ spoke of the Pentateuch as the work of the law of Moses? Yes, but yet not to allow for the Scriptures are to be considered to writing until long after Christ's time, and there was opportunity for altering the historical aspects of the story.

Dr. Newton continued that modern criticism had seriously strengthened the belief that the Pentateuch as it stands was not a work of Moses, but that gathered overwhelming evidence from a careful study of the contents of the books. There are other things upon the surface of the story which point more than that of Moses. He would especially take them on account of his own death and burial, the mention of it given in the last chapter of Deuteronomy. There are also many passages which contain historical and geographical allusions and statements, totally out of keeping with the time of Moses. Take the passage in Genesis which says, 'Now the Canaanite was then in the land.' Moses never could have written that, for the Jews, before they entered Canaan, were driven out of it by the Canaanites, and could have made no such statement. Moses, moreover, could not have written of the death of Moses, and the writer of Deuteronomy must have been a man living long after the time of Moses.

Archdeacon Farrar on the Drunkard Incorporated in England.

London Times, Dec. 6.—Last night, a very serious congregation assembled in the Abbey to hear a sermon preached by the Archdeacon of Westminster, Canon Farrar. The text was from Isaiah xxviii., 1: "Woe to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim, whose glorious beauty is a fading flower, which are on the head of the fat valleys of them that are overcome with wine!" The preacher said:

"Drunkenness is the great curse of England. It is the great curse of the world. It is the great curse of the Church. It is the great curse of the ministry. It is the great curse of the nation. It is the great curse of the family. It is the great curse of the individual. It is the great curse of the poor. It is the great curse of the rich. It is the great curse of the young. It is the great curse of the old. It is the great curse of the middle aged. It is the great curse of the male sex. It is the great curse of the female sex. It is the great curse of the married. It is the great curse of the single. It is the great curse of the clergy. It is the great curse of the laity. It is the great curse of the rulers. It is the great curse of the ruled. It is the great curse of the educated. It is the great curse of the uneducated. It is the great curse of the civilized. It is the great curse of the uncivilized. It is the great curse of the Christian. It is the great curse of the heathen. It is the great curse of the whole world. It is the great curse of the whole human race. It is the great curse of the whole universe. It is the great curse of the whole creation. It is the great curse of the whole of God's creation. It is the great curse of the whole of God's creation. It is the great curse of the whole of God's

MICHAEL DAVITT.

A Dissertation on the Gospel of Discontent as Preached in England.

The Work Undertaken by William Dorsia, the Poet, and the Democratic Federation.

Signs of the Times Prompting Further Success for the Irish National League.

LONDON, Dec. 22, via PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—[Special.]—I expect before you are a number of a fantastic propaganda that an overtaxing of the burden of instructive function by the logic of circumstance. I appeal to some of you to measure your clear proportions, to show some of that moral of responsibility which marks the normality. So are to long and life to show, and we must to everything before we die; but if we ask for perfection of associations we shall all before we do anything. There is one great weapon against anti-Irishism, and that is union. Separation destructive will touch the soul of anarchism plutocracy. You must take an idea and you must do it well. You must have the idea and then go there. One thousand hearts and one hour of a new religion. You influenced and moved questions, a million—there to power on earth.

It has certainly startling that here before us a London inhabitant is to a London inhabitant society to a workingman to avoid such into socialism, as other classmen are not the way to their metropolitan and into the crisis which are beginning to be their serious action on the last parliament of "your man's politics." But when the plan of meeting in Exchange Hall, Oxford, the association the book of colleges, undergraduates, Professors, and lecturers of that class, yet excellence of economic reform, and the speaker was William Morris, both the language and the aesthetic leaders and of these significant signs of the times which are breaking the night advent of change in the domestic politics of England and a revolution in the economic thought of the age.

THE NATIONALIST CHANGE.

Interesting as such a development is from a purely scientific, it is dusty as from that in which an Irish Nationalist is called upon to note the tendency and speculate upon its political consequences to his own country. As a rule the Nationalist leaders are in the habit of speaking contemptuously of English socialism. That is true, a few exceptions to the general rule. That Justin McCarthy's address to the last session of the National Assembly, which was entirely taken up with the discussion of Mr. Gladstone's new Irish land bill, was entirely independent from Socialism is doubtless true. The Irish Party, the most efficient organ of the Conservatives, is not apt to notice the following references to it in their leading article:

Irish party practically has been in the position of an interested party but "the old principle of laissez faire" has not yet been entirely abandoned by the Liberal leaders. Let us not be misunderstood. We are not arguing in favor of the principle of State interference in the affairs of individuals. We are not advocating Socialism. We are not even suggesting that the Irish Party should adopt a policy of State interference. We are simply stating a fact which has been proved by the experience of all who have studied the question, namely, that the Irish people are suffering from a grievance which the ordinary principles of political economy are powerless to remedy, and which can only be remedied by the application of principles which are generally condemned by political economists.

The Nationalist question is the most important which the Irish Party has to deal with. The Irish people are in favor of State interference in the affairs of individuals. They are not afraid of Socialism. They are not afraid of the principle of State interference. They are not afraid of the principle of laissez faire. They are not afraid of any principle which will help them to get their rights. They are not afraid of any principle which will help them to get their rights. They are not afraid of any principle which will help them to get their rights.

THE SOCIALIST PROGRESS.

This view doesn't render such a movement an object of deep interest to politicians, and as an Irish Socialist organization will likely be formed shortly in London, it may be well to give here a further insight into the scope and organization. The programme of the Democratic Federation is as follows:

1. Adult suffrage.
2. Annual Parliaments.
3. Proportional representation.
4. Payment of members and other necessary steps to be taken.
5. Abolition of the House of Lords and all hereditary legislation.
6. Direct veto by the people on all Acts of Parliament.
7. Abolition of the House of Lords and all hereditary rights.
8. Legislative independence for Ireland.
9. Federation of the United Kingdom, including Federation of colonies and dependencies.
10. Nationalization of land.
11. Nationalization of all means of production, distribution and exchange.
12. Collectivism.

QUESTION OF METHODS.

Then, then, we observe the principles of the Land League programme to coincide and correspond in many points with those of the Democratic Federation, but differences in methods are likely to arise between the two organizations. The programme of the Democratic Federation is as follows:

1. Adult suffrage.
2. Annual Parliaments.
3. Proportional representation.
4. Payment of members and other necessary steps to be taken.
5. Abolition of the House of Lords and all hereditary rights.
6. Direct veto by the people on all Acts of Parliament.
7. Abolition of the House of Lords and all hereditary rights.
8. Legislative independence for Ireland.
9. Federation of the United Kingdom, including Federation of colonies and dependencies.
